PEKING PLANS BIG "PROTEST PARADE" FOR DISARMAMENT

Fifty Thousand Students To March On Oct. 10

TO HIT WARLORDS

Many Leading Men Are Organising Movement

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, October 1.—A mammoth parade to be participated by at least 50,000 students and merchants will be held here on October 10 on the occasion of the 11th anniversary of the founding of the Republic. Instead of a celebration, it will be a protesting demonstration against the increase of armament in China.

The move was first made by the Peking People's Disarmament Association, the Peking General Chamber of Commerce, the Amalgamated Federation of Chambers of Commerce, the Metropolitan Agricultural Association, the Peking Bankers' Association and the Union of Public Welfare. A committee of 72 (12 from each organisation) is holding daily meetings in preparation for the historical demonstration, which promises to be absolutely passive and orderly.

Prominent among the promoters of the movements are General Ting Ching, former Director of the Aeronautical Department; Mr. Chang Yao-tseng, former Minister of Justice; Dr. Tsai Yuan-pei, president of the Peking Government University and others.

The agitation will not end with the spectacular demonstration but will be followed by consultations with President Li Yuan-hung in connection of the latter's ideas on disbanding superfluous troops contained in his circular telegram upon his assumption of office last May, negotiations with the Tuchuns of the various provinces on disarmament, the evacuation of certain historical places and the publication of a magazine to be known as "Disarmament."

General Ting will act as the grand marshal of the parade which will gather in front of the Tien An Meng at 2 o'clock

Motor cars, charts, pictures, lanterns, bands, electric displays and banners will form sections of the parade. Already 15,000 students have signified their intention to participate. The shops will hoist up the national colors on that day together with a flag of similar size bearing the legend "Disarmament."

The huge mass of humanity will be generally divided into four sections in accordance with the locality of the organisations. Those in the East City will "fall in" at the Union Church, those in West City, at the Industrial Technical School, while those in the South City will meet at the Temple of Heaven and those in North City, to the First College of the Government University. These sections will march through the Hutungs and main thoroughfare promptly at nine o'clock in the morning and must be at the Tien An Meng by 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

The parade or any section of it will not demonstrate in front of the Presidential Office or any other Yamen. Circulars will be distributed in the course of the demonstration. Between two and five in the afternoon, speeches will be delivered from a specially constructed platform at Tien An Meng.

Premier Wang Chung-hui is one of the promoters of the movement while most of the administrative officers are sympathetic towards the movement. Extra police will do patrol duty where the parade passes to assist the paraders in maintaining peace and order.

President Li, it is understood, will make special reference to the parade at the reception to be given in honor of members of the Diplomatic Corps after the procession. He will also make important announcements to the military authorities in the provinces regarding the question of disarmament.

AMERICAN RULING ON CITIZENSHIP IS DOUBTED HERE

Consular Officials Doubt Authenticity Of News Despatch

Officials at the American Consulate express skepticism yesterday regarding the Reuter despatch from Peking to the effect that the American Legation there had received word from Washington that, under new regulations, alien women marrying American citizens would not thereby acquire American citizenship.

"I do not believe this report," said Consul General E. S. Cunningham. "On its face it doesn't sound reasonable, or in keeping with common sense. For the American government to put such regulations in force would invite disputes with other governments, and as this is a matter that is covered in treaties of long standing it does not appear probable that it could be changed or swept aside merely by the issuance of a set of regulations. I am of the opinion that a change of such far reaching importance would have to be made, if at all, by Congress."

Consular officials explained that no word had been received from Peking on the subject, and they expressed the opinion that if any message arrived it would be found to differ materially from the version set forth by the news agency.

To Plan For Local Labor Union Today

The closing down of the Mill Hands' Association of Pootung will be the subject matter for discussion at a meeting of the Industrial and Commercial Friendly Society, King Loong Ka, this afternoon at 3 o'clock. The Pootung organisation was recently ordered closed by the local police on account of alleged Bolshevik activities, which had caused several strikes in Pootung.

Other business to be brought up at the meeting this afternoon will be the formation of plans for the organisation of an Amalgamated Labor Union in Shanghai and the preparation for the celebration of the Double Ten Festival on October 10.

SUN'S TROOPS MARCHING ON FOOCHOW; TO SEEK REVENGE

Only 60 Miles Away, According To Peking Message

WIRE TELLS WHY

Hope To Punish Tuchun For Earlier Attack

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Oct. 3.—It is reported that General Hsu Chung-chih's force is now 60 miles from Foochow.

Martial law has been declared in Foochow by Tuchun Li Hao-chi as the provincial capital is threatened by Dr. Sun's punitive expedition headed by Generals Hsu Chung-chi Wang Ta-wei and Li Fu-ling, according to a telegram received by a private office here last night. Wealthy merchants are moving into Amoy for safety and it is predicted that General Li will not be able to hold the city.

THE CHINA PRESS last night also received the following telegram from Kienning from Generals Hsu Wang and Li, setting forth their reason for attacking the Fukien tuchun:

"For the cause of democracy, our army participated in the recent Northern Expedition to reinforce Kiangsi forces. We withdrew later in order to suppress the evils in Kwangtung. Our moves were prompted by conscience and endorsed by many wise and intelligent people.

"However, without any cause Tuchun Li Hao-chi of Fukien went over his provincial border and precipitated a clash with our soldiers. On August 28, he despatched the brigade under Wang Shien-chen to threaten Yungmenglin and Chingwu and attack our rear.

"On the following day, we addressed a telegram to him to find out the cause of this unnecessary sacrifice and asked him to withdraw his troops in order to avoid further trouble. But this was ignored. He further ordered his forces to advance towards Huichang and Jutking while we retreated in orderly manner to avoid an armed clash.

"All attempts for peace have failed as Li Hao-chi wilfully resorts to warfare without considering the interest of the people. For the last ten years he has held the highest position in Fukien. During his administration he has abandoned civil government, oppressed public sentiment, embezzled public funds and slaughtered innocent students.

"As our army marched through the country no less than 100,000 people were willing to join us and drive out the usurper. For the sake of the public and the self-defense of our army, we have advanced upon Kienning and Shaochow and are headed towards the provincial capital in order to eliminate the public enemy and restore peace and order."

ASK LOCAL BANKS NOT TO PURCHASE KIANGSU BONDS

Peking Gentry Promises Drastic Action Against Issue Of Provincial Loan

The local Chinese Bankers' Association yesterday received an urgent telegram from the Kiangsu residents in Peking, asking it not to act as agents for the subscription of the $7,000,000 Kiangsu provincial bond issue sanctioned at a recent Cabinet meeting. The text of the message reads:

"The new bonds to be issued by the provincial authorities of Kiangsu has not been sanctioned by Parliament, but is illegally authorised by Cabinet. They should have no legal value. The Kiangsu residents in Peking have decided not only to ask Parliament to reject the proposal but also to impeach the provincial authorities for proposing such a loan. We shall never stop until our aim is reached. We trust that you will not accept them and throw away your investment. The Kiangsu residents shall accept no responsibility for this illegal issue."

The issue was authorised in spite of strenuous opposition from the Kiangsu people. The significant part of the authorisation was that the proposal was made not by the Ministry of Finance but by the Tuchun of Kiangsu, Chi Shih-yuan, directly to the Cabinet. Minister Lo Wen-ken, the present Minister of Finance, in an interview with the opponents to the bonds, stated that he knew nothing of the proposal until it was suddenly brought up for discussion at the Cabinet meeting. He intimated that this was a political move on the part of Dr. Wang Chung-hui, whose Cabinet would otherwise be opposed by the Kiangsu militarists.

Church Guild To Give Entertainment

Final arrangements for the opening program of the Union Church Literary and Social Guild, Wednesday, October 11, have now been made. Mrs. J. W. Nicolson will give a comedietta, "The Happy Pair," a pathetic impersonation, "Joe," from Dickens, a character impersonation in costume "Domestic Mutual Improvement," and will appear in an original duologue entitled "Proposing to a New Woman." Mrs. Nicolson's partner in the duologue will be announced on the program the night of the entertainment. We understand rehearsals have been going on for some weeks and the duologue will doubtless be one of the most enjoyable numbers on the program. Mrs. Nicholson will be assisted by Mrs. Isherwood, Mrs. Armistead, Miss Sharp, Mr. R. S. Fernihough, Mr. A. E. Raggett, and others. A full program will be published in a few days.

The Guild meetings for the autumn sessions will include a lantern lecture by Mr. J. C. Carter on "A Trip on the Chien Tang River," a paper on "Lovers in Dickens" by Mr. Henry Speakman, a Mock Trial given by boys of the Shanghai Public School under the direction of Mr. G. E. Matthews. The program promises to be one of the best in many years. Intending members are requested to send in the membership fee of $1 with application for tickets to one of the secretaries, Mr. Thomas Hutchison, Messrs. Babcock and Wilcox, 1 The Bund, and Miss Fitch, 20 Museum Road. Tickets can also be obtained from any member of the Committee.

Soviets Object To Straits Blockade

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 2.—The Foreign Office has received a further Note from the Russian Soviet Government, dated Oct. 1, strongly protesting against the blockade of the Straits by the British Fleet and alleging that the British Commander-in-Chief had ordered warships to fire on ships disregarding the order not to pass the Straits.

It declares that the blockade prevents Russia from carrying out her work of economic reconstruction and that the Russian Government is for liberty of the Straits but liberty appertaining to merchantmen alone which would completely free the Straits and the Black Sea from the presence of foreign naval forces.

The Russian Government insists on the raising of the blockade and of all restrictions enforced by the Allies with regard to the passage of the Dardanelles and the Bosphorus by merchant ships.

ANOTHER STRIKE OF RICSHA MEN NOW IN PROSPECT

Sub-Foremen Of Star Company Issue Statement Saying They Intend To Quit

Another development that follows upon recent abortive strikes of workers of The Star Ricsha Company is an announcement issued yesterday by sub-foremen of this concern, which is the largest ricsha company in the International Settlement, that they will cease operations after next Saturday unless demands they have made are granted.

When the former trouble arose the basis of the grievances of the men was a requirement imposed by the Star company compelling the sub-foremen to pay repairs of all damages done to ricshas. It is set forth that this requirement is a comparatively recent change and was made after a considerable advance had been made in the daily rental price per ricsha.

The new grievances follow the lines of those that were voiced on the former occasion. They are set forth in detail in a statement which has been addressed to the police of both the International and French Settlements and which is as follows:

MEN STATE CASE

"At the beginning of the ricsha business the management of the Star Ricsha Company charged the foremen according to the number of ricshas hired out, and no fines or compensation for damages done to ricshas were imposed.

"However since the Star Ricsha Company bought over the Wah Faung Ricsha Company the number of ricshas has greatly increased. In consequence of famine in various places, many refugees have come to Shanghai to adopt ricsha pulling as a means of earning a living. The Star Ricsha Company drew up a scale of compensation for damages done to ricshas in September last year, and increased the ricsha hire from 50 cts. per day per ricsha to 75 cts.; furthermore for damage done to ricshas the foremen had to pay double the amount of the cost of the part damaged.

OTHER REQUIREMENTS

"When ricshas that are considered old and in need of repair, are turned over to the company for repairs by the police, the company still charges the foremen for the hire money during the period that the ricsha is being repaired. When any ricsha is taken to the French Police Station and fined $1 or 50 cts. the police authorities mark on the receipt that this money must be paid by the company but this the foremen have to pay.

"In case of storm very few ricshas can be hired out, but the company charges the foremen as usual. We have suffered a great deal since the enforcement of the new regulations, especially during the recent days of stormy weather when few ricshas could be hired out.

"Monday, the foremen called upon the manager and requested him to adopt the old scale, charging the foremen according to the number of ricshas actually hired out, but our request was rejected. As it is impossible for us to carry on the business any further, we intend to resign. We now report our difficulties to the Police Authorities. We will not take out any licences from the company from October 7."

Nationalism Menace To Future, Savant Declares

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, Oct. 1.—At the assembly of the men's college of the Peking University (Yenching Ta Hsueh) James W. Garner, Professor of Political Science at the University of Illinois, gave a talk on the present difficulty of the world and the way out.

Professor Garner said: "I want to call your attention to the difference between the post and pre-war world and say that I am not one of those who believe that the war was entirely evil. Millions of people have been liberated, claims of justice and humanity have been vindicated to a certain extent, but when all is said and the largest case possible made for the benefits derived from the war, they do not compare with the evils which outweigh them; the price was too high.

"The greatest lesson that the war leaves is the necessity of producing a permanent check to its repetition. There are sixty nations or governments in the world today. We speak by courtesy of the family of nations, but look at the family. Every nation is in a state of practical anarchy in respect to its neighbors, in respect to the other members of the family. Every nation is in what the old philosphers used to call 'a state of nature.' It is potentially in a condition of war towards other nations. Why is this? It is because we have a double standard of conduct—one for the individual and another for the state. It is the inconsistancy of civilisation and the state has no system of law and justice toward other states. Such a system is the world's greatest need, the abolition of the double standard of conduct.

"How is this to be brought about? There are three serious obstacles. The first is the sacro-sanct, antiquated, outworn doctrine of national sovereignty, the right of the state to be above law. This phrase is legitimate in so far as the state can control itself, but it is illegitimate in the way in which it is constantly to mean that might is right. The second obstacle is the unwillingness of the state to assume the obligations necessary to establish an organisation to maintain peace effectively. All states when asked, say that they desire peace, but none are willing to take the responsibilities of assuring the establishment of the necessary organisation. The third obstacle is the sacro-sanct doctrine of the equality of states. In these sixty states, there are nations like the great powers and there are others like Monaco and San Domingo. They are equal in a sense that they all should be protected against injustice, they are all entitled to the protection of their rights, but they are equal in no other sense, neither of resources nor of voolce nor in any other sense. To attempt to make them equal in the voice of nations of the world is absurd. England and America would not for a moment permit Haiti and San Domingo to have an equal voice with them in a conference, and this is the cause of the failure of the Second Hague Conference in which the smaller nations made this claim and it was not allowed, whereupon the Conference broke up.

"With these three obstacles away, the world's difficulties will be comparatively easy. The League of Nations attempted a solution and the reason that it failed was because it lacked the power to do away with these three obstacles, yet the League of Nations represents the highest practical idealism that the world has yet reached. There is now the necessity of finding a more perfect organisation than the League. It can and will be accomplished.

"At the present time international war takes place recklessly but the day will come when the nation that starts an international war will be branded as a criminal just as a pirate is branded today. Such an organisation as I have described must needs be in a position to make good its findings. I do not like to think of myself as a pessimist, but one cannot help being pessimistic in face of the present state of the world. As Mr. Lilloyd George said, unless we prevent the recurrence of war, our civilisation is doomed. Unless prevention comes, we shall have in the future more wars than in the past and on a larger scale. Mr. Wilson said in 1916 in Cincinnati that this is the last war in which the United States will be neutral. The following year the United States took part in that war and from now on, if wars do not stop, the United States will be in them because a small war is impossible under the present entanglement and relations of the nations of the world. Mr. Root not long said that the reason why we have war is not as many people claim, that the people of the earth are not sufficiently educated, but is rather because we are not sufficiently moral. It is because we do not have a sufficiently high standard of morality. With such an increasing sense of the necessity for a higher standard of morality, we have the motive power for doing away with the three obstacles which I have mentioned, and the world may look forward to a way out of its present difficulties."

Mr. Arnold, who is at present in Peking, will sail for America via Honolulu by the President Taft on October 17.

Chinese Women Ask Political Jobs

(Independent News Service)

Hankow, Sept. 30.—Women suffragists in Hunan Province are becoming part and parcel of political wrangels in Hunan, now that they are organising a big suffragist part of women politicians to be called "Ping Sheh," meaning the "Levelling Club." The object of this organisation will be to stabilise provincial constitutionism and maintain the spirit of democratic government. Leaders of the movement, most of whom are gifted with forensic and oratorical ability, are rallying under their flag intellectuals of the fair sex.

The suffragists have named six candidates for administrative chiefs of the province, now that their eligibility to government posts and title to participation in political affairs are backed by adequate provisions in the provincial constitution which was framed last year not without painstaking efforts. For securing the support of the Hunan Provincial Assembly, a tea party was given to Hunan Assemblymen, at which Miss Lee Chung-lien, chairman of the Women's political party, announced the readiness and efforts of the fair sex to avail the enfranchisement and political privileges accorded them by the organic laws of Hunan. The names and experiences of the six women candidates were enumerated and mentioned, and their recommendation is supported by votes of the women party.

Following the announcement of the chairman, eight other women leaders orated with such credit and eloquence as would easily surpass many of those Assembly spokesmen in the audience. Chairman and Vice Chairman of the Assembly responded to the various speeches, and expressed the opinion that Hunan is leading other provinces in its women statesmanship and assured the women leaders their fullest co-operation.

Soviets To Send Tibet Expedition

(Reuter's Service)

London, October 3.—In order to increase its influence in Central Asia the Soviet Government is preparing an expedition to Tibet, according to the Daily Telegraph, with the avowed object of scientific and geographical research but as the expedition will include several military topographers and graduates of the Moscow Propaganda College, the journal adds, some doubts on the matter are justifiable. M. Kosloff, who has maintained good personal relations with the Dalai Lama's Court, will lead the expedition, which will be escorted by Siberian Cossacks and Kalmuks.

TIMBER IN QUEENSLAND

The Queensland Forest Service estimate that the State of Queensland could produce approximately the following quantities of timber.

Pine	1,000,000,000 S. ft.
Pine tops	200,000,000 S. ft.
Kauria Pine ..	200,000,000 S. ft.
Maple	100,000,000 S. ft.
Brown Oak	700,000,000 S. ft.
Cypress Pine ..	300,000,000 S. ft.
Hardwoods ...	3,000,000,000 S. ft.
Brush Timbers	15,000,000,000 S. ft.

This enormous total will give some idea as to the immense quantities of timber available in the State of Queensland. Large quantities of timber are being destroyed annually which are in every way suitable for us in many important directions.

To take advantage of this is obviously to kill two birds with one stone.

(Reuter's Service)

The Hague, Oct. 2.—The Foreign Office announces that as a result of a consultation of the Powers concerned it has been agreed that the commission of jurists, which the Washington Conference decided should be established to consider the question of additions to the rules of International Law in connection with new methods of warfare, shall meet at The Hague on December 10.

Two Provinces May Resume With Peking

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Sept. 2.—It is semi-officially stated that as the result of interviews between members of the governments and the Missions from Kwangsi and from Kweichow, there is a probability that those provinces will resume relations with Peking.

General Lin Chun-ting is mentioned as probable Tupan of Military Affairs in Kwangsi while discussions are continuing regarding the occupancy of the similar post in Kweichow.

Foochow Escapes Wrath Of Typhoons

(China Press Service)

Foochow, Sept. 26.—The summer has ended and Foochow has not been visited by a typhoon. There have been typhoons north of us, east of us, and south of us destroying property and killing men, women and children, but we have escaped.

The missionaries and families of the community people have returned to port and the schools are opening with about the usual number of students. The various lines of business have been and are about as prosperous as usual.

The American-Oriental Bank of Fukien had its opening on the 25th. Flags, scrolls and banners by the score decorated the building, and the government band furnished music. Tea and cakes were served liberally and, of course, the never to be forgotten fire crackers were much in evidence. Mr. F. J. Raven is the President, Mr. C. A. Barker, Jr. is the Manager; Mr. F. T. Brewster is the Deputy Manager; and Mr. T. L. Chen is the Assistant Manager. Their building is very conveniently located just east of the Foochow Club on the bluff at the end of the Bridge of Ten Thousand Ages.

Government Paid Too Much For Meet

(Reuter's Service)

London, October 3.—The report of the Auditor-General on trading by Government departments during the year, ended March 31, 1921, states that owing to the payment of £40 per box instead of £30 for Chinese bacon and lard a certain firm of importers have received £250.000 in excess of the amount payable. This is described as an oversight on the part of two officers, who have now left the Board of Trade, which is taking steps to recover the excess payment.

The report attributes a considerable loss on large purchases of Chinese flour in 1920 mainly to the fall on price of flour generally and also to the unpopularity of this kind of flour. It mentions that some of this flour was sold to a foreign Government early in 1921.

BARON NAMED

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, October 3.—Baron Nagaoka, the Japanese Minister to Czecho-Slovakia, has been appointed one of the Japanese representatives on the commission on rules of warfare.

CHINESE DENIES ARSON CHARGE IN MIXED COURT

The Chinese shopkeeper charged with arson as the result of a fire occurring in his shop at 915 Boone Road on the morning of September 24 took the witness box before Assessor King and Magistrate Li of the Mixed Court yesterday and denied guilt, while a fourteen-year-old apprentice testified that he was responsible for the blaze.

At the outset of the hearing Mr. H. D. Rodger, who previously appeared for the accused, stated that he wished to withdraw from the case. The prosecution was conducted by Mr. R. C. Faithful.

Mr. Upton, Third Officer of the Fire Department and in charge of Hongkew Fire Station, told the court that after reaching the scene of the fire, which was then only smouldering, he had found four tins which had contained spirits of wine, in each of which tins a hole had evidently been hastily made. He scouted the story of the apprentice that an accidentally dropped match had ignited the spirits of wine, stating that experiments had shown that the fluid had to be heated before it would ignite and a single dropped match would not create a blaze. The witness was of opinion that the fire had started in two different places in the shop.

A fish hawker who lived at the rear of the shop told of seeing smoke, kicking in the back door and seeing fire in two places, about a yard apart.

A Chinese from an employment bureau said that the accused had come to the agency and asked the manager to try and settle the matter with the police, fearing that he would be arrested.

The accused denied knowing how the fire started and insisted that he was there and helped extinguish it, though other Chinese witnesses declared he was not there. The small apprentice afterward told him that in lighting a lamp during the early morning hours he had dropped the match and ignited the spirits. The tins spoken of by the other witnesses he declared were used for the mixing of spirits of wine, turpentine and polish. The apprentice corroborated the shop man's testimony and the case was adjourned for two weeks.

WEIHAIWEI BODY MEET TO CONSIDER RETROCESSION

Administrator Points To Necessity Of Maintaining Good Government

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Weihaiwei, Oct. 2.—The first meeting of the Weihaiwei Retrocession Commission opened today at nine o'clock.

Mr. A. P. Blunt, the Administrator, opened the proceedings with a speech, in which he said that the task of the Commission was to arrive at an agreement to secure to the people of the territory of Weihaiwei in the future a history similar to that of the past twenty-four years. It was reasonable to expect that the existing foreign interests would not suffer. Weihaiwei had during the summer of every year a daily average of six hundred foreign visitors. The secrets of success were the climate, scenery and good sanitation. The policing of Weihaiwei was second to none in the rest of the country where similar places were necessary for the ever-increasing foreign population.

The more visitors there were the greater prosperity and also the greater criticism and the greater opportunity for China to demonstrate to the world her fitness to govern. On the other hand failure to carry on the Government as it was always run, in accordance with Chinese customs and cheaply, would hardly afford very strong arguments in favor, for instance, of the abolition of extraterritoriality. Turning to the Chinese delegation, Mr. Blunt said: "Mr. Liang and Chinese members of the Commission, you have a great opportunity to do work for China which all real friends of China hope to see you fulfil."

The revenue in 1902-1903 was $31,715 and the expenditure $142,500 while last year the revenue was $199,000 and the expenditure $226,667. In his opinion, the territory was just self-supporting and there was an opportunity for China to create a model Government of the territory. The last word argued was that the lease of Weihaiwei expired in any case in 1923 and that Britain's action at Washington was dictated not by generosity but by the desire to gain credit for forestalling the inevitable and to save money.

With regard to the former contention, Mr. Blunt said that he would be a bold man who would assert that, if Britain had desired to continue the lease, China would be justified in refusing under the "most favored nation clause." With regard to the latter he had just shown that the territory was now just self-supporting. Mr. Blunt then asked Mr. B. Giles, the Senior British delegate, to take the Chair at this and at the following meetings.

Mr. M. T. Liang, the head of the Chinese delegation, replied to Mr. Blunt's speech and Admiral Y. F. Woo on behalf of the Chinese Navy then outlined the attitude of the Chinese Government towards retrocession with special reference to the use of Liukungtao as a summer station for the British Fleet.

The subsequent proceedings took the form of a preliminary discussion, principally with reference to the future status and administration of the Island, more particularly from the naval standpoint.

(China Press Service)

Oxford, England, Sept. 5.—Having tried their physical skill against American university men, Oxford men are now going to test their intellectual abilities against the collegians of America.

The subjects for discussion will include foreign politics and industrial problems.

Some of the most attractive Christmas cards and calendars which have come to notice in a long time are being brought out this year by Messrs. Kelly and Walsh, Ltd. A series of folder cards, bearing the "Jade Seal of Remembrance" on the cover and with sepia tinted scenes of China, extremely well selected, on the inner leaf, constitute a most pleasing greeting form to mail to folk at home. Another attractive collection of cards are done in black, with engraved seal characters in red, small sketches emblazoned at the top depicting houseboys, amahs, coolies and other important factors in the China household staff. The calendars also bear the jade seal and typical Chinese scenes of the more famous of the country's beauty spots.

JOHANSSON BEATS BOTLEY IN BEST OF SEVEN BOUTS AT BOXING CLUB'S SHOW

Main Events Carded Flivver Out But Good Action Is Seen In Several Sessions

Though the two main bouts scheduled proved to be of the citrus classification, patrons of the Shanghai Amateur Boxing Club's show at the Town Hall last night saw some good boxing in the lesser events.

The stellar number of the evening's program was provided by J. Johansson, Public School boy, and Botley of the Carlisle, the local boy being awarded the honors after six lively rounds in which both men did some clever boxing.

The scheduled fifteen rounds to have been boxed by Sailor Bowdidge and "Tom Moore," dragged along to the beginning of the fifth session, when Moore, evidently in distress after a couple of rounds of the sailor's crashes to the jaw, walked into his corner and resigned.

The ten-round event arranged between Yorke of the Carlisle and Modesta of the Club evaporated in even less time, the rangy navy man only being prevented from putting over the knockout before the close of the initial round by Referee Rodger stopping the fight.

YORKE EASY WINNER

Modesta was an eleventh hour substitute for Wilson, who is suffering from a bad hand, and unless M. Wilson, whom the writer doesn't know, is pretty good, he should congratulate himself on his absence. Yorke had the advantage in reach and went at things in cool and businesslike fashion. The affair opened with lively hostilities, Modesto rushing and both men slugging for the head. Yorke's reach and coolness began to tell immediately and after battering his opponent into a sort of daze he dropped him to the floor. Modesta tried to come back but was obviously at the sailor's mercy when the referee stepped in.

In the two opening events Abbas, S.A.B.C., won in the first round from Crabb of the Carlisle, showing far superior in every department of the game, and Bannister, of the Carlisle, got the six-round decision over Oliveros, of the Club. Bannister was the aggressor throughout.

The fourth event also had to be called to a halt before the scheduled six frames had elapsed. In this set-to Machado, S.A.B.C., handed a fearsome trimming to the Carlisle contender, Hazelgrove, exercising a wicked left lead and opening up at intervals with a two-handed attack which had Hazelgrove huddled into the ropes while the victor pounded him about the head and uppercut him into so blighted a hope that Referee Rodger reached out toward the close of the second round and jerked one of the Club boy's hands into the air as a signal for cease firing.

Another abbreviated session was the fifth event, between Maguire and Price, both of the Carlisle. Maguire, fighting at 120 pounds, took his 126-pound opponent into camp in three rounds. Price affected a queer dodging crouch which Maguire solved after two rounds, getting home to Price's jaw regularly thereafter.

IS GOOD BATTLE

Johansson and Botley really put on an excellent show. The Shanghai boy was evidently disconcerted at the start by the navy man's fancy footwork, or fresco of tatooing, or something, and played very cautiously at the opening, but he quickly recovered his poise and drove home a couple of sound shots to the face to make the first round even. The second session opened in lively fashion, with good blocking and footwork and both boys scoring, but Johansson took the round. The next was even, with the sailor the aggressor and the last three rounds were Johansson's, the local lad finishing up well in command, though Botley showed well on defense.

CLUB IS AHEAD

Last night's bouts, with three going to the Club and three to the Carlisle, brought the Club into the lead by one event for the two nights—five victories going to Mr Parkes's youngsters and four to the Carlisle.

Following the show Col. R. Marr Johnson, honorary president of the S. A. B. C., spoke briefly in gratification for the interest in boxing evidenced by the large crowd and paid tribute to the efforts of Mr. Parkes, secretary of the Club and boxing instructor at the Public School, to whom the success of the show was largely due. A handsome lot of silver trophies was then presented to the winners of the various events.

GOOD ADVICE IS ALL RIGHT

Hosses are stampeding up around Belmont these days. Same ultimate oat consumers that ran at Jamaica and Saratoga. Boys keep betting on 'em hoping that they'll get struck by lightning.

There is more good advice around race track than there is rice in Asia. Boys back up and unload their dope and then rattle away for another load. The mysterious guys who wear out their arches skipping from the betting parlors to the paddock and back again are the boys who grab the stem-winding cyclone.

Here's something quick. Broken Leg in the third. I know that horse and got it straight from the boy who sleeps with him.

Something fat. Scrambled Brains in the last race. He's in with a lot of high-priced hamburger steaks. He can beat those roaches with his nosebag on.

Scrambled Brains steps out and runs as if he still has his nose-bag on.

Copenhagen, Sept. 4.—The world's record for the pole vault was broken in the Copenhagen Stadium yesterday by Hoff, the Norwegian athlete, who cleared the bar 4 meters 9 centimeters, approximately 13 feet 6 inches.

Rickard Trying To Match Wilde, Villa

(China Press Service)

New York, Oct. 1.—Boxing promoters in the United States among them Tex Rickard, are already trying to induce the world's flyweight champion Jimmy Wilde to come to New York for a championship bout with Pancho Villa, the first Oriental champion of America.

In case Wilde decides to come the fight will probably be held in December. Villa has made the announcement that he is not anxious to go to England as it would not pay much due to traveling expenses.

Hankow, Sept. 30.—The American Volunteer Company of Hankow elected their officers for the ensuing year at a meeting held in the American Consulate building yesterday, and the following were elected for the Company: Major Ross, of the Standard Oil Co. of N. Y., Commanding Officer; Lieutenant R. W. French, of the International Banking Corporation, First Lieutenant; and Mr. Walter H. Mallory, of the American Church Mission, Second Lieutenant. Major Ross was in the service of the U. S. Army for eighteen years, and his election as Captain of the American Volunteers bespeaks for strong and efficient organisation and training of the Company. SWEETSER, 20 YEAR OLD YALE STUDENT, CAPTURES U. S. AMATUER GOLF TITLE

Proves His Championship Calibre By Eliminating, In Order, Willie Hunter, Jess Guilford, Bobby Jones And Chick Evans

BY HUGH FULLERTON

Brookline, Mass., Sept. 9.—Jesse Sweetser of Bronxville, N. Y., 20 years old and a junior at Yale, today finished smashing the idols of the golfing world, and, in capturing the amateur championship of the United States added Chick Evans, the Edgewater veteran, to his list of victims.

The slender athletic blond boy, whose chances were considered worthless at the start of the tournament, was not a fluke champion. In four days he overwhelmed Willie Hunter, former champion of Britain; Jess Guilford, champion of the United States; Bobby Jones, the ranking favorite, and today climaxed the marvelous performance by outfighting, outputting and out-approaching the veteran and in spite of Evans' desperate and brilliant efforts to recover the ground lost in the morning round held him safe until the match ended with a wild outburst of applause on the sixteenth green.

The great crowd perhaps the greatest that ever watched golf in the United States was given the thrill of the year.

NO SIGNS OF WAVERING

In the contest of the 20-year-old boy and the veteran of a thousand tournaments neither showed a sign of wavering, but it was Chick who had to do the long putting in the majority of cases, and it was Sweetser who, when forced to run down the long ones, ran them with deadly accuracy.

Sweetser's driving was consistently longer than that of Evans, and Chick was using the old system of approaching first, confident of his own ability to lay the ball close to the cup, a system which has forced many an opponent to explode in trying to pitch closer. Today when Evans pitched close the Siwanoy kid pitched closer, and left Evans the longer putts on nineteen of the thirty-four holes. After he had Evans' four down, with the Chicago star fighting to reach equal terms Sweetser played safe golf, ran his approach

ANDREWS TELLS OF 3rd EXPEDITION INTO MONGOLIA

Central Asia Birthplace Of European Animal Life, He Says

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, Sept 30.—Dr. Roy Chapman Andrews, of the Museum of Natural History in New York told of the success of the third Asiatic expedition last night to an enthusiastic audience composed of members of the Chinese Geographical society. The results accomplished by the third expedition into the hinterland of Mongolia were beyond the hopes of even the most sanguine, he stated. Fossils and ancient remains of paleozoic and mezozoic life were found in abundance on the great Mongolian plateau which will prove invaluable to scientists in piecing together theories anent prehistoric civilisation.

Other speakers included Dr. Berkey, Dr. Granger and Mr. Morrison all members of the expedition who recounted in detail the results attained in their separate spheres.

Dr. Andrews said in part:

"The Third Asiatic Expedition had four main purposes when we started out. The first was to attempt to discover in Central Asia the birthplace of the animal life of Europe and of North America. We came to establish this as fact rather than as a theory, and we have been successful. The second aim was to prove that Central Asia was the birthplace of the human race. This is not yet proven. We have barely scratched the surface and we may reasonably hope for extraordinary developments in the future. The third object was to establish a great hall of Asiatic nature life for the Museum of Natural History in New York. The fourth object was to aid in the establishment of a similar museum in Peking.

"We travelled roughly three thousand miles and our next success is due to the fact that we brought back to Peking all of our motors. We were told this could not be done, and New York insurance companies refused to insure the car.

"Mr. Shackleford was our photographer. He found fossils, he helped repair motor cars, he put his hand to anything and everything but principally made twenty thousand feet of film, not only of the scientific work of the Expedition but of the life and manners of the people, thus putting on record photographically for the first time the life of a large section of the country.

"The geologists and paleontologist of the Expedition are next to be spoken of. Dr. Berkey and Mr. Morrison were the former and Dr. Granger the latter. They worked together hand in hand; they worked the Expedition almost to death. In fact, Dr. Granger held us up for five days to collect fossils. The paleontologists proved theories which were advanced twenty-five years ago. They revolutionised the entire conception of Central Asia in point of fact instead of in mere theory."

Dr. Berkey, one of the paleontologists was the next speaker and he spoke with emotion because he said that he expected to leave in three days and doubted if he would ever again return to China. He said, "Our chief purpose was purely scientific and we had no other motives, military, commercial or otherwise. We started from Peking thence to Kalgan, Urga, and three hundred miles south to the Altai Mountains, and across them, and back to Kalgan, covering twenty-five hundreds miles which was virtually unknown, scientifically speaking. Mr. Morrison and I were together always, and took observations constantly. A continuous geographical cross section was made mile by mile. The nature of the result is that we are able to map out the topographic and physiographic history of Mongolia. The second result is that we are able to map out a cross section for a thousand miles. Thirdly, we have been able to determine what some of the major problems are and where the likeliest places to solve them are."

In closing Dr. Berkey said he would like to comment on a matter, that probably Dr. Granger would think too small to mention, and that was the finding of mosquito fossils showing the great antiquity of that pest.

Mr. Morris made the next address saying, "I am to speak on the topographic work. How did we make our maps? First we sketched the sky line for hundreds of miles. This, of course, was very elementary, but it could be done as rapidly as a motor car can move. We were helped in this by the speedometer of the motor, which told us how fast we were going and on what scale our map was. We were also helped by the barometer which told us the inclinations or declinations and which we consulted every mile. A compass and a ruler also helped us. Secondly we were able to survey with the proper implements when the Expedition came to a halt. Having made the maps, the next question was, where were we at the time of making. We are indebted to the Chinese Geographical Survey for the instruments with which we made the observations of the sun and polar star to take the latitude and lognitude.

"We were particularly interested in the forming of the peniplanes. Soft rock and hard rock are the same. They can be levelled down to the same plane if you only give the elements of wind, rain and weather time enough throughout the ages to work upon them, and here they have had plenty of time and have done their job well."

Dr. Granger, the next speaker asked the question, "how do we collect fossils"? The manner in China is different from in Mongolia. The Chinese have long used fossils for medicinal purposes and therefore, they have a commercial value. The collectors are formed into a sort of guild. "I was not allowed to work in Szechuen because the fossils there are controlled as it were, by the guild. In Monoglia there are no restrictions." Dr. Granger said that one of the most important of their discoveries was the fact that the Dinosaur inhabited this country of Central Asia. Previously it had not been supposed to have existed north of the Himalayas. It is a discovery of the greatest importance. The speaker explained that the Dinosaur was a reptile of the mesozoic period which was the age of reptiles, and it disappeared with that period. Bones of the Baluchitherium, believed to be the largest land mammal, were also found. Among these bones was a skull measuring five feet.

TRIUMPH OVER AGE

Golfing youth triumphed over golfing age. Evans "Chick" to the golfing world won his first national title in 1916. Sweetser, who says his name is Jees, not Jesse, is still in his twenty-first year. With one exception, he is the youngest champion in the twenty-six years of title competition in this country. With few exceptions, he was the youngest of the lot of fourteen golfers, the most brilliant field ever gathered for the event, who set out here a week ago for the championship. Over the game as exenplified by eight official and two unofficial representatives of Great Britain, its native heath, and as played by champions and near-champions of the United States, and its sections, many of them veteran links campaigners, the play of the youth prevailed. Through stormy days and sunny days Sweetser lasted longest.

To golfing enthusiasts the story of his success today lies in the fact that he beat "Chick" Evans at his own game. It was expected that Sweetser would outdrive Evans—and he did. It was thought he would be off on his approaches and that Evans would beat him in this, the department of play in which Chick is acknowledged the best in the world, but he did not.

CHICK IN THE ROUGH

Instead, Sweetser was usually straight ahead and it was Chick who was oftenest in the rough, who was trapped or bunkered trying to get to the greens, and who, once on, fell short or overran in putting for the hole.

Jurisdiction Puzzle Arises Over Inquest For Chinese Seaman

Mixed Court Hesitates In Case Of Engineroom Victim

A queer point of jurisdiction was raised before the Mixed Court authorities Monday when Inspector Mellows of the River Police reported on the death of a Chinese fireman of the steamer M. S. Dollar who was crushed to death in the engine room when the vessel was about twenty miles out of Woosung early Sunday morning.

Inspector Mellows stated that, after wirelessing, the ship returned to Woosung and landed the body, which was brought to Shanghai by the River Police. The case was a peculiar one as regarded the matter of proceeding with the inquest, witness said. The ship could not rightly be held to have been at sea since it was within twenty miles of Shanghai. It was a British ship and he had informed the British Shipping Office and Mr. King and had been referred to the Mixed Court. No similar case had come under his experience. There had been instances where the British coroner had held inquests over the bodies of members of the crews of British ships and if the man had been born in Hongkong the British coroner would naturally take jurisdiction.

If the case were adjourned, Inspector Mellows said, an agent of the company would attend and could bring the captain's report of the accident, details of which the witness had not been able to learn, as the ship had sailed again when the River Police man arrived at Woosung.

In adjourning the case Assessor Mead remarked that while the case might be one in which the facts were very simple he was not prepared to go on with the inquest and take jurisdiction as it might create a very difficult precedent.

A Story With a Heart and Soul. A Simple and Consistent Story.
A Love Idyll of Simple Country-folks. Charming Country Scenes.

A COUNTRY LOVER—As the power of affection and sound morals, the most subtle force in the world, appealingly shown in this picture.

A MOTHER—A world of tenderness that flooded its golden light on the girl in her hour of despair.

A SPOILED SON OF THE RICH—Who thinks that money is the supreme power. But prosperity has ruined more men than poverty. It is not money that counts, but a good reputation. Alas, he finds it out too late, this son of the banker.

A PRETTY COUNTRY GIRL—Simplicity it self, yet her destiny was a life to be filled with surprises as well as disappointments. A tragic little figure, appealing for your sympathy and love. Rewarded at last. The rays of happiness illuminate her after her hour of adversity.

U. S. Court For China

AT TIENTSIN

The complete decision of Judge Charles S. Lobingier in the case in which Mr. Charles Hannigs, well known Far Eastern hotel man, was acquitted of charges of assaulting a ricsha coolie, is as follows:

SYLLABUS

1.—Crimes: Motive is a prime quest in the investigation of an alleged crime. Failure to show motive weakens the prosecution's case.

2.—ID.: Evidence reviewed and found insufficient to convict.

3.—ID.: Id.: Identification should be effected by requiring the accuser to pick out the accused from a group of several persons.

4.—ID.: Id.: Weight. Testimony of brothel keepers and inmates are not ordinarily given the same weight as that of respectable persons.

Leonard G. Husar, Esquire, United States Distrirt Attorney, for the prosecution.

Roland S. Haskell, Esquire, of Rodger and Haskell, Contra.

The defendant is charged with having assaulted a rickshaw coolie at about three o'clock on the morning of September 18. It is undisputed that the defendant had arrived in Tientsin a few hours earlier after an absence of about eight months, and after dinner at the Hotel de la Paix, hired a rickshaw and visited various respectable places on proper errands and finally returned to his hotel. The principal discrepancies between his testimony and that of the complaining witness relate to the time spent at these places and, more particularly, to what occurred after the return to the hotel. Defendant states that he returned there shortly before 12, entered the hotel and went almost directly to his room where he retired for the night, passing, however, through the barroom where he greeted a number of acquaintances, who, with others, corroborate him in this account. The complaining witness claims that defendant did not return to the hotel until two hours later, that he did not enter at all nor even alight from the rickshaw, but, at the entrance, directed the complaining witness to turn around and take him to a Chinese brothel which defendant entered and, after remaining (p. 3) "about one hour" (on cross-examination (p. 8) complaining witness says "about half an hour") came out and with no provocation, words or previous trouble struck the jaw of complaining witness who fell down (p. 9) and then covered his face with his hands and turned around when defendant kicked and felled him causing a serious injury from which he passed blood two days and rested five days but that defendant nevertheless compelled him to pull the rickshaw on a run back to the hotel which was reached at about 3 a.m.

On the face of it this story contains what can hardly be considered as other than improbabilities. A prime quest in the investigation of every alleged crime is the motive; but none has been shown here and none was even suggested in the argument for the prosecution. According to the complaining witness, as we have seen, the assault came like a "bolt from the blue." He had been with defendant all evening, he says, had no difficulty and no complaint and yet at the very end without warning or occasion defendant brutally attacked him in a manner which the latter would almost certainly have expected to disable the coolie and have left defendant at an early hour in the morning a considerable distance from his hotel and without conveyance. Yet there is no suggestion that defendant's condition at the time was other than normal. Several witnesses testify that he had that evening declined their invitations to drink, he stating that he was not drinking, and when the complaining witness left defendant the latter paid him one dollar and twenty cents fare and the two parted amicably there being no suggestion of any claim of compensation for injury.

The story seems all the more improbable when we consider the historical setting, the previous occurrences and the surrounding circumstances. Defendant had been forced to leave Tientsin because of similar complaints. Besides two sentences, three orders of arrest had been issued and were hanging over him unexecuted. Surely no man in his senses would under such conditions, and without motive or provocation, incur the certainty of further trouble of the same kind. Again defendant is a man of middle age (49), married and the father of four children. A medical examination of him was made at his request and the result is such as at least to indicate that he would not be greatly attracted to a Chinese brothel at 3 o'clock in the morning after a two days train ride from Shanghai from which he says, and naturally, he was very tired. In the face of such antecedent improbability it behooves us to scrutinise very closely the testimony of this complaining witness; for if defendant is convicted it must be almost entirely upon that testimony. As we shall see presently the two other witnesses for the prosecution afford little real corroboration.

The complaining witness is contradicted by other witnesses, apparently disinterested, as to important details preceding the time of alleged assault. He is very positive e. g. that defendant remained at Kiessling's confectionary store about "two hours" leaving there at ten minutes to twelve according to the clock which the complaining witness could see through the window. Mr. Kiessling himself says that defendant left at about eleven after having remained about a quarter of an hour. More than that, at almost the precise hour fixed by the complaining witness as the time of leaving Kiessling's for the Astor House, defendant was seen and greeted by no fewer than six acquaintances at the Hotel de la Paix which, according to the complaining witness, defendant did not even enter before 3 a.m. All of these witnesses declare that defendant passed through the barroom, said "good night" and turned in the direction of the stairway to his room. One of them, the Chinese bartender, states that he followed defendant on the way to the telephone and saw him go up the stairs. All of these witnesses agree that the bar and its entrance were closed at about 12 o'clock and that thereafter there were no means of exit or entrance except that guarded by the watchman who says that he knows the defendant but did not see him that evening though he was on duty from 9 p.m. until after 2 a.m. He states that he was sometimes called away to answer the telephone or receive chits but his duty was to guard the door, and the hotel manager testifies that he remained in his office about twenty minutes after 12, that the watchman was at the door and that he did not see defendant leave although he was in a position where he would have seen him. Mr. Barbey, a Swiss merchant and a long time guest at the hotel, testifies that he remained until 1 o'clock but did not see the accused go out and that there was a good porter on duty.

With such an array of witnesses corroborating defendant as to his movements about midnight it seems very clear that the testimony of the complaining witness regarding what happened at the same time is untrue; and his entire omission of these occurrences at defendant's hotel strongly discredits the balance of his testimony if, indeed, it is not entirely refuted. For that testimony could only be true upon the improbable assumption that defendant after going up stairs to or toward his room came down again unnoticed before 1:45 and proceeded out of the one guarded exit without being observed by the watchman.

According to the complaining witness, defendant did not go near his hotel at this time but went directly from Kiessling's a little before 12 to the Astor House where he remained until a quarter before 2 by the clock in the tower of the British Municipal Council Building (pp. 6,7). This account is utterly irreconcilable with the testimony of the six other witnesses above mentioned. If they are believed he cannot be. And here it may be noted that the exaggeration of the time spent by defendant at Kiessling's and also at the Astor House and the entire failure even to mention the return to the Hotel de la Paix at about midnight, are just such features as would naturally accompany the fabrication for the coolie by some other person of greater intelligence, of the story of subsequent events; for it would be necessary in some way to account for defendant's movements until such a late hour the selection of which, together with a place unfrequented by foreigners would render contradiction more difficult.

The description of the details of the alleged assault is hardly more convincing. The complaint upon which defendant was bound over by the Consular Court charges that he "did wilfully and unlawfully use force and violence upon the person of affiant by then and there striking the affiant on the jaw with his fist and knocking him to the ground and kicking him with his foot."

The complaining witness repeatedly asserts (pp. 3,4,9) that defendant first struck him on the jaw or face with his fist. If the blow was a hard one, it must, according to the physician, have caused discoloration. It must have been a hard one according to the coolie for he "fell down" (p. 9) and his face was swollen (p. 11).

Indeed it was noticeable to others for "a rickshaw coolie asked what was the matter with my face and I said I was hit by a foreigner" (p. 12). This, apparently was on the day he went to the Consulate. Yet the physician who examined him on the same day, some thirty-three hours after the alleged blow found no trace of it.

Again, complaining witness claims that defendant kicked him in a spot indicated as "about one inch to the right and above the anus" (p. 10) and so violently as to fell him. The physician testifies that the only external evidence of injury was a swelling just back of the scrotum and in front of the anus a spot not exactly easy to reach with one foot. He could not say that it was the result of a kick but might have been received from a fall or by sitting down on something hard. The complaining witness also claims that for two days thereafter he passed blood as a result of this injury but the physician's examination within less than a day and a half disclosed no blood.

Finally, after all this, the complaining witness, he says, not only took defendant back to his hotel and accepted payment without claiming compensation for injury but he left defendant there at a time when, according to undisputed testimony, he could not have been admitted. Mr. Barbey, above mentioned, testifies that the doors of the hotel are closed at 2 a.m. which is the hour when the watchman leaves.

The corroboration offered by complaining witness afford him little if any help. A witness who states that he was in charge of a brothel testified that he saw a foreigner kick the rickshaw man but he could not identify defendant as the one. The only other witness for the prosecution was an inmate of a brothel who says that defendant visited her but whose indentification is hardly stronger. Defendant testifies (and on this point he is uncontradicted) regarding the preliminary hearing:

A. "The vice consul asked one of the witnesses 'Is that the man,' as the woman was not sure.

Q. The vice consul confronted you with this woman?

A. I was told by Mr. Fuller to stand in this corner (indicating) and the woman was brought in by another Chinese person, there were several foreign people, and I heard Mr. Smith saying 'Ask that woman again because she is not certain;' but I was pointed out. There are several witnesses to that effect. That is the first time I had ever seen this woman."

The transcript (p. 16) of the preliminary examination contains the following near the beginning of the testimony of this brothel inmate. 'Defense states he wants the Court to note the unfair way in which this man is being identified.' The identification by the complaining witness himself appears to have been similar. The transcript (p. 2) of the first hearing contains the following question and answer during his examination:

Court:

Is this man in the corner (points at Hannigs) the one against whom he brought complaint?

A. Yes.

The method of identification employed in all police agencies of which we have any knowledge is to line up the accused with several others of somewhat similar appearance and ask the accuser and his witnesses to pick out the guilty one from the group. Any form of identification short of this would seem to be unreliable.

The brothel inmate evidently did not tell the truth. She claims to have been attracted by the same noise which the other witness says he heard, to wit: the coolie's cry that someone was beating him. She was then undressed but she took time to don her clothes, climb up a ladder and go out on the roof after which she saw the entire occurrences—"two strikes on face and one kick" (p. 17). Yet according to the complaining witness the whole affair must have been over in a few seconds. He mentions only one blow followed immediately by the kick and the brothel inmate would not have had time to dress, let alone climb the ladder, in time to see what was happening. Indeed the coolie's cry, had it been uttered at all, would have been after or during the blow. But not much more than this could be expected of witnesses in the occupation of these two who are offered for corroboration. In all countries of which we have any knowledge the testimony of brothel keepers and inmates is received with caution, not to say suspicion. In China itself they have always been of the lowest and pariah class without even legal status until the formation of the Republic.

Upon such testimony and with no more corroboration we feel that it would be entirely unsafe to convict any one. For conviction must overcome all reasonable doubt of guilt and every accused is entitled to the presumption of innocence. Such an offence as is here charged would, if proven, be promptly and severely punished; but we cannot lawfully convict this or any other defendant upon suspicion, nor upon general principles, nor to gratify his enemies.

The defendant is therefore acquitted with costs de officio and his bail is released.

Soviets Indifferent To American Relief Work

(China Press Service)

Moscow, September 3.—Colonel William N. Haskell, director of the Russian unit, American Relief Administration, was sitting quietly at his desk in the Moscow offices of the A. R. A. An interpreter knocked.

"Mr. Kameneff begs to be excused, sir," he said. "He regrets that it will be impossible for him to see Colonel Haskell until tomorrow morning." Kameneff is chairman of the Moscow Soviet and chairman of the All-Russian Famine Relief.

"You informed Mr. Kameneff that I was leaving for Saratov tonight?" he inquired.

"Yes, sir, and that you expected to be gone about ten days."

There was a moment of silence and then the telephone buzzed. Colonel Haskell reached for it.

"Tell him," the unperturbed colonel answered into the telephone, "that the train for Saratov must not leave until I have concluded my interview with Mr. Kameneff. Now," turning to the interpreter, "tell Mr. Kameneff that I have asked the railroad authorities to hold the train. The matter is urgent and I do not propose to leave Moscow until it is settled."

KAMENEFF DILATORY

Twenty minutes later the telephone rang again. The voice at the other end of the wire explained that "Comrade Kameneff would see Colonel Haskell immediately."

The incident illustrates what America in Russia has to contend with in order to feed 10,000,000 people. The main difficulty is in convincing these officials that lost time means lost lives.

"When we first came in," he smiled, "we had a devil of a time getting anything done. The Soviet Government looked upon us with suspicion. We had to 'soft-pedal' our demands, and we were always met with the promise —'zaftra.'

"Then food began to go out to the districts, long trainloads of child-feeding supplies. We opened up more districts and increased allotments all around. Here in Moscow the atmosphere began to change. Our requests in the matter of transportation, adequate housing for personnel and office space were given more attention. By the time we were feeding a million the attitude of the administration here in Moscow had changed, but not entirely.

PUT ON SCREWS

"We figured that the time for making unheeded requests had passed. So when they kept putting things off and giving us empty promises we put on the screws.

The man who "cleaned up" Armenia as Allied High Commissioner grinned. "We get along fine with them now," he said.

Colonel Haskell's record stamps him as one of the ablest organisers in the United States Army. Herbert Hoover probably had this in mind when he selected him for the most difficult job in Russia. The War Department recognised Haskell's abilities when it placed him in command of New York's famous Sixty-ninth Infantry while that regiment was still an untrained and undisciplined element of the National Guard.

It was a two-fisted job. After accomplishing this Haskell was needed by the War Department for the huge training program it had outlined after the outbreak of war. He was relieved of command of the Sixty-ninth, which, as a unit of the Rainbow Division, sailed for France. He was assigned to Camp Upton, where he organised headquarters or the Seventy-seventh Division of the National Army, later becoming chief of staff of this division. In January, 1918, he was ordered to sail for France, where he entered the Army Staff College at Langres. When General Bullard assumed command of the Second Army he was made Chief of Operations, in which capacity he was serving when the armistice was signed.

But Colonel Haskell was not destined to lead a quiet life. Herbert Hoover asked the War Department to assign Haskell to the American Relief Administration, which had just been organised, for the delicate task of feeding the population of Rumania until the 1919 crop could be harvested.

WORK ORGANISED

Long before the Fall of the year, however, the work had been organised, and Colonel Haskell was recommended to the Supreme Council at Paris for the important post of Allied High Commissioner to Armenia, which he accepted in July, 1919.

Having discharged the commission with his usual precision, Colonel Haskell returned to the United States late in 1920, determined to lead a quiet life in Washington with Mrs. Haskell and the children. Hardly had he collected his family under the roof of their Washington residence when Herbert Hoover appeared on his horizon and, brushing aside formalities of greeting, popped out something to this effect:

"Haskell, a lot of children are dying of starvation in Russia. Can't let 'em do that. How soon can you leave?"

September, 1921, found the globe-trotting colonel on the Olympic en route to the land of Soviets.

Arriving in Moscow he found a terribly chaotic condition of affairs.

ORGANISES FORCE

Quickly sizing up the situation, Colonel Haskell immediately organised ten divisions, each under an efficient executive and following out the lines of army organisation.

Fighting typhus and more-dreaded diseases every inch of the way, little groups of Americans pushed into the interior. Rail transportation was bad enough, but sleigh transportation, upon which the child-feeding kichens depended for their supplies, was worse.

Back in Moscow during this period in Haskell stood at the helm with grim determination. Telegraphic communication had broken down to some districts; transportation was on the verge of collapse, and his Volga units were in danger of isolation. But Haskell knew his men; he knew that they were made of the righ stuff.

Today his efforts are bearing ripe fruit. With less than 200 Americans, scattered over an area as broad as the United States, he has accomplished the unprecedented feat of feeding 10,000,000 people. More than 100,000 Russians have been trained by the American Relief Administration in relief work and will eventually be able to take over the operations.

CHOLERA IN JAPAN

(Eastern News Agency)

Tokio, Oct. 2.—An epidemic of cholera broke out a few days ago in Choshi Town, Chiba Prefecture, cases amounting to over 100 in number. Yesterday, new cases were found in Asakusa District, Tokio, the epidemic spreading all over the capital with the consequence that a large number of suspected cases and ten true ones have happened. In consequence, the authorities concerned are taking every precaution.

Sun's Troops In South Face New Military Peril

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Canton, Sept. 25.—Agents of the military leaders in Kwangsi are now at work in Canton trying to enlist support from the Kwangtung military authorities to drive the remnants of Dr. Sun Yat-sen's supporters from their territory. The Kwangsi militarists desire assistance from Kwangtung in their operations when aid from outside is necessary and in checking possible assistance to the Sun Yat-sen sympathisers from outside Kwangsi. So far, no definite promise has yet been made to the Kwangsi leaders.

The Canton army intends to station more troops along the West River on the ground that this will remove the soldiers as far as possible from the business center of Canton.

A battalion of troops from the Kaichow military district has been assigned to the Government House at Canton as a bodyguard to the Provisional Civil Governor.

An arsenal will be shortly founded in Waichow, the home district of General Chen Chiung-ming. General Chen, who is now in Waichow celebrating the birthday of his mother, is looking for a suitable site for the proposed arsenal.

A general strike of school teachers in Canton under the employment of the Government has been averted, the Commissioner of Finance agreeing to pay their salaries partly in silver whenever the notes of the Provincial Bank of Kwangtung drop to less than 90 percent. Many classes had been suspended since September 18 owing to the attendance of the teachers at conferences with regard to the salary question.

Reports from Government sources indicate that disturbances in favor of Dr. Sun Yat-sen in the Meihsien district and on the Kwangtung-Fukien-Kiangsi borders have failed. The "Constitutionalist" troops in the South-western districts of Kwangtung are unable to hold out any longer, according to other Government reports, and General Wong Keong's division of the Cantonese Army reported the capture of Pakhoi from General Huang Ming-tang, the last commander to stand by the "Constitutionalist" standard. Some reports state that General Chen Chiung-ming will afford General Huang favorable treatment if he will surrender without further struggle.

It is stated that the Canton Government intends to raise $500,000 in silver monthly for at least the next twenty months as a reserve for the redemption of the now depreciating banknotes of the Provincial Bank of Kwangtung. The Canton Government Mint from its income will contribute monthly $250,000, the Stamp Tax Bureau $100,000, the Public Lands Bureau $100,000 and the Kowloon and other likin offices $50,000. The cash will be deposited with the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation at Shameen.

Russian Bandits Are To Face Trial

Four Russians, known as the 'Black Automobile Gang,' have just been brought to Harbin, says the Russian Daily News (Harbin). The last time they were there they terrorised the city by visiting the rich houses, especially those occupied by Semenoff officers. They also robbed the Manchuli Customs House of 5,000 roubles.

These men have now been brought by the police to Harbin from Vladivostok, to which place they fled after robbing the Custom House.

The men were only taken at Vladivostok after a fight, and were brought to Harbin in irons.

They are charged with a number of very serious crimes.

One of the band, Kameneff, a student, is considered a greater criminal than the notorious Korniloff who made such a name for himself in Harbin. In 1917 he is said to have killed an official of the Harbin police in order to commit a robbery. He is believed to have belonged to a big band of robbers who operated in the region of Novo Nikolaevsk, in Siberia, in 1916. Before being captured Kameneff wounded himself in the breast with a knife. On his arrival in Harbin he had to be carried to the prison hospital on a stretcher.

Rubber Prices

Messrs. J. A. Wattie and Company have received the following telegram from Messrs. Harrisons Barker and Company, London dated September 30:

Average spot price standard quality Ribbed Smoked Sheet 8⅝d.

Average spot price standard quality First Crepe 8⅝d.

Exchange Fluctuations

Asia Banking Corporation

October 3, 1922

Spot bar silver was up 1-16d. and forward unchanged in London yesterday. The New York price advanced to 69¼ cents and the London-New York cross rate to 439⅜.

The only change in our official quotations here today was a rise in the Gold Dollar rate to 76.

At the opening our market was steady for Sterling and firm for Gold Dollars but later on in the morning became very strong for both Sterling and Gold Dollars. In the early part of the morning business in Sterling was done at 3-5—13-16 October-November delivery and 3-5⅞ for forward.

Gold Dollars were done at the same time at 76⅝ October-November and 76¾ for forward delivery.

However, there were strong sellers at these rates and as there were also some bills in the market and practically no demand rates firmed up and at one time as high as 3s. 6d. for October-November and 3s. 6⅛d. for December-January Sterling was done.

Gold Dollars were done at 76⅞ October 77 November and 77⅛ for forward delivery. There were, however, good buyers at these rates and the market therefore eased off slightly in the afternoon, closing with sellers of Sterling at 3s. 5⅞d. for practically all deliveries up to January, and of Gold Dollars at 76¾, with buyers at ⅛d. and ¼ point respectively above these rates.

There was again a good demand for Yen today in which business was done at 62⅞ October and 62¾ December delivery. There were buyers at these rates at the close.

Banks were quoting 3-65/64 for Sterling bills, 78¼ for Gold Dollar bills and 1040 for Franc bills.

India bought silver in London yesterday and the market there as well as in New York is reported as steady.

Hongkong Shares

Messrs. Moxon and Taylor of Hongkong write as follows in their weekly report on the share market dated Hongkong, September 29:

We have had quite a brisk market during the past week although last Tuesday was settlement day and we are glad to say it was put through without any trouble in spite of the settlement being on a considerably larger scale than we have had for some time.

The Shanghai market continues quiet.

Rubber continues stagnant.

The following are the principal alterations since last week.

Hongkong Banks:—Have been in strong demand with few if any sellers and close with buyers at $895.

Unions:—Have also been in good demand and close firm with buyers at $206.

Hongkong Lands:—Are slightly easier closing steady at $234.

Humphreys:—Have again been the medium of considerable business at rising prices and close with buyers at $16.10.

Cantons:—Are wanted at $465, at which price a few shares have changed hands.

Hongkong Fires:—Have firmed up to a buying rate of $410.

Hongkong Hotels:—Eased off slightly during the week and have done at $23½ Old and $18¼ New.

China Sugars:—Have been enquired for at $155 and close nominal at the rate.

Dairy Farms:—Are slightly easier and close with sales at $23¼ Old and $22½ New.

Hongkong Wharves:—Have had a sharp rise and close very firm with buyers at $159½ cash.

China Providents:—Have eased off since the settlement and close with sellers at $26.

Lane, Crawfords:—Are very firm with buyers at $21 and no sellers.

Singapore Rubber Auction

Singapore, Sept. 20, 1922

Since our last report 7¾d. was touched for spot on the London market, but receded again to 7½d., at which figure the market has remained dull unchanged until this morning when 7⅝d. was reported. New York has fluctuated between 14⅝ and 14¼ cents. The local market has followed the London market, although there have been no keen sellers at the lower level.

Of the 842 tons catalogued for sale at this week's auction, 650 tons were offered and 512 tons sold.

The demand was steady, although considerable quantities of Standard Sheet were withdrawn.

Prices show a set-back of ⅛ to ¾ cent on the week.

A few lots of Awarded Standard Ribbed Smoked Sheet sold at 24¾ cents, fetching ¼ cent more when sold in estate cases.

Sheet equal to Standard and good lots of F.A.Q. found ready buyers at prices ¼ cent lower.

No sales of Awarded Standard 1st Latex Crepe were closed at the auction.

Crepe equal to Standard was in good favor at 24½ cents.

Off Color Latex was wanted.

Brown, Dark and Barky Crepes sold to an interested market.

Revolt Threatens In Kiangsi Province

(Independent News Agency)

Hankow, Sept. 29.—Political animosity of the Kiangsi people against General Tsai Chen-hsun, Commander of Kiangsi, seems to be determined that unless Tsai removes his nominee, Li Ting-yu, from Civil Governorship at Nanchang, he is bound to face some unhappy consequences out of the incensed public sentiment. Kiangsi organisations are rallying around them not only bitter fanatics, eager for revenge, but also the great mass of the discontented who feel themselves yoked under northern militarism of which Tsai is a representative. Influential bodies such as the Chambers of Commerce, Educational Association, Nanchang Provincial Assembly, Self-Government Associations, and the like have aroused through their agitations a bitter opposition movement against Tsai's presumptuous appointment of his "pocket-man" for the post of Civil Governor.

However, Tsai Chen-hsun is calm at Nanchang seemingly unperturbed by the people's movement. He seems to have profound faith in the efficacy of force, which is borne out by the belief that General Wu Pei-fu, under whom Tsai is a protege, is backing Tsai up now that he has not expressed a word of disapproval despite the numerous representations made by Kiangsi representatives at Peking and Loyanfu.

On account of unceasing demonstrations of Kiangsi gentry and M. P.'s at Peking, it is now understood that Premier Wang has seen it through that some form of compromise should be worked so as to allay the rancor of Kiangsi people. He has decided that Mr. Hsieh Yuan-han, who was appointed to civil governorship by President Li Yuan-hung in a mandate, should be urged to assume office in view of his duly authorised title to that position. Mr. Hsieh is now in Shanghai having failed to get the official seal of civil governor of Kiangsi from the hands of Tsai Chen-hsun.

Premier Wang is reported to have telegraphed him persuading him to proceed to Kiangsi and take up the post so that the deadlock may be easily settled. Meanwhile he has telegraphed Tsai Chen-hsun advising him that the duly appointed nominee, Mr. Hsieh Yuan-han, will soon be in Nanchang to take charge of his office. Mr. Wang states that as Tsai has always been loyal to the government and faithful to his trust, he will find it his duty to obey the appointment of Mr. Hsieh by the President.

Certain factions in Kiangsi have recommended the appointment of Chow Erh-kwei to the disputed post, but this has been denied by the Peking government on account of Chow's close affiliations with Chang Hsun, the leader of the former monarchical restoration movement.

Harbin In Grip Of Financial Crisis

In consequence of the sharp money crisis in Harbin the Chinese banks have stopped making loans and the majority of Chinese business enterprises are threatened with bankruptcy, says the Russian Daily News (Harbin).

The business men, together with the Chinese Chamber of Commerce, have applied to Chang Tso-lin for aid, describing to him their plight.

Chang Tso-lin ordered twelve million Mukden dollars transferred from his Mukden Bank, the exchange of these dollars being 1.54 to the Mexican Dollar.

The money has already been transferred and distributed among five local Chinese banks, who have been instructed to issue loans for a term of not less than one year.

Chang Tso-lin at the same time, in order to aid Chinese business men to improve their affairs, ordered that creditors should make no demands for payment for a period of one year.

It is believed that these measures will have a beneficial effect on trade and that one result will be that the Mukden dollar will come into circulation, instead of the Kirin and Tsitsikar dollars especially as the latter continue to fall.

Gen. Wu To Extend Arsenal In Honan

(Independent News Service)

Hankow, Sept. 28.—General Wu Pei-fu is continuing the unfinished task of the late President Yuan Shih-kai in the latter's extension plan to make the Government Arsenal of Kunghsien in Honan the Krupp works of China. Yuan Shih-kai ordered the most up-to-date arsenal machinery and equipment from a New York firm, but the contract has since been kept in abeyance and Yuan never executed his part on account of his unexpected death. The complete line of machinery ordered, however, was subsequently shipped to Shanghai, but the New York firm had great difficulty in finding responsible party in the Chinese government to execute the contract signed by Yuan Shih-kai.

The armament plan of Yuan Shih-kai was later reported to General Wu who became at once enthusiastic in continuing the project. According to a report received here, General Wu paid over the balance of U. S. Gold $3,000,000 to the New York company this spring, and the machinery was delivered in the Kunghsien Arsenal in August. Several new buildings are being erected at Kunghsien, and as soon as they are ready for occupancy, the machinery will be installed and work begun in the manufacture of arms.

The Near East Crisis

ALTHOUGH the crisis in the Near East seems to have been eased a bit, due to the arrangement of the conference at Mudania, the eventual danger of a conflagration that will inflame the whole Moslem world remains. It is clear that the Moscow Government is supporting Kemal Pasha. Not only that, it is urging resistance to Great Britain and demanding a clear track in the Dardanelles. How far Berlin is in the confidence of Moscow in this matter is not known, but there is evidence to support the assumption that the two governments have reached some sort of an understanding.

The question uppermost in London probably is: In case of war between Turkey and Great Britain, will the latter be left to bear the burden alone? With the greater part of the Mahommedan world under the flag of the British Empire, a war of this character would lead to inconceivable and almost endless complications—especially if the Russian Bolshevik armies should become active against the British.

The parties now chiefly concerned, aside from the Turks are the Christian population of Anatolia and the great Powers whose sins of omission and commission are responsible not only for the prolongation of the Anatolian war, but for its latest turn. Realising that somebody has to make a pretense of taking over the protection, if not of Greek Christians, at any rate of Western Europeans, England, France and Italy have sent warships and troops to the scene. But Mustapha Kemal's officers would hardly let their troops massacre Englishmen and Frenchmen and Italians. And it is too much to expect a naval force to offer effectual protection to Greek Christians outside the range of its guns.

The Washington Administration has ordered some of Admiral Bristol's destroyers to Smyrna, with instructions to do nothing but protect American interests. There seems to be a fear that the allied naval forces may make some sort of "demonstration." What, and why? Could England and France agree on anything but the joint protection of their subjects in the unlikely case of their being endangered? The American fleet is to hold aloof from any "involvement." The Administration doubtless expects popular approvement of the view that Greek Christians may be shot down so long as Americans are not knocked over by stray bullets.

If America holds aloof, what shall be said of the three great Powers more immediately concerned? There was a period when stopping the Turk was the concern of a more or less united Europe; in more recent days liberating civilised peoples from the Turk was a business in which Western nations were not ashamed to join. He is the same Turk but he has found new allies. The Germans failed him, but the French now take their place. It is fashionable to say that this is an Anglo-French war, with the Greeks and Turks fighting as mercenaries of the two greater Powers. The converse is rather true. The Turks have bought the help of France with mining concessions, the Greeks the qualified support of England by their protection of the approaches to the Strait.

Yet the responsibility lies with the two Powers and with Italy—the responsibility of defending civilised European peoples against a hopelessly unprogressive Asiatic foe. It is, in a sense, the white man's burden, defensively rather than aggressively conceived. The youngest and weakest members of the European community have been left to do the common work against the Turk. The Balkan States all but drove him out of Europe. The Greeks tried to drive him back into the interior of Anatolia. Now that they have failed the duty of handling the Near Eastern problem comes back to London, Paris and Rome. If they do not do something with it they need not be surprised if the time should come when Berlin and Moscow again take it out of their hands.

Right now, everything may be said to depend upon the outcome of the Mudania Conference.

This Wide World

It may not be necessary to commiserate the 1,500 "intellectuals" who are to be banished from Russia for their hostility to the government, for most of them would have left long ago if they had been able to get way. They may use the language which the poet ascribes to Catiline:

Banished from Rome? What's banished but set free
From daily contact with the things I loathe?

No doubt, too many of them are men of ability who will be able to earn a better living abroad than in Russia.

If dreadnaughts are as obsolescent as the naval radicals say, the French navy, in losing the France on a reef in Quiberon bay, is merely scrapping a useless ship. It is at all events a considerable consolation that only three lives were lost.

"Sales to foreigners prohibited" is a sign displayed by furriers in Leipzig. In countries of depreciated currency the popular revolt against exploitation by foreigners is growing. In some cases hotel bills, it is said, are made out in dollars.

Nobody has yet been sentenced to death in the row over Bulgarian spelling reform, but the consequences are sufficiently serious. The professors in the university of Sofia are still on strike, and the university is standing idle, with the prospect that when it does reopen its doors there will be no students. It is a good deal of fuss to make over three silent letters, yet conservative Englishmen have felt almost as sensitive about the silent "u" in "honour."

In fiction the Russian crown jewels have so often been stolen and smuggled to America by international bands of crooks, that it is almost a surprise to hear that they are still intact and carefully guarded in Moscow. The famous Orloff diamond has even grown, for it is only now revealed that shortly before the war jewellers in resetting it found that its weight was 94 carats instead of 84, as had been supposed. Whether to sell them or keep them in a museum is a question that exercises the Soviet government.

Globe girdling by airplane consists largely in being fished out of the water. The crew of the Sampaio Correia were luckier than MacMillan and Mailians, who are now at a hospital at Chittagong after being afloat for 50 hours without food or water.

A remarkable record was made at the national shorthand reporters' convention at New London by Nathan Behrin, reporter for the supreme court of New York city, who won the first prize with an average correctness of 99.4% percent in four contests at 200, 220, 240 and 280 words per minute, a feat never before equaled. Such errors as these were no doubt trivial; it is seldom indeed that a crack reporter makes a mistake at an essential point.

Signs Of Religious Revival

BY "ARTIFEX"
(In The Manchester Guardian)

Some 5 and 20 years ago, in a lecture room at Cambridge, a rather confident young man was reading his essay at a small class held by the late Prof Sidgwick. He began: "It is universally admitted to be true. . . ." when the professor, with that marked stammer which gave an added impressiveness to all that he said, struck in with the words "Then it is almost certainly false." This was something more than a rebuke for a too confident young man. It was the statement of a profound truth. By the time that a thing is "universally admitted to be true" it has generally ceased to be important, and not seldom ceased to be even true.

It would be possible to give several notable instances of this fact from recent history. But it is more important to attack at once the question which stands at the head of this article. (Is a religious revival probable?) It it "universally admitted to be true" that churches are all but empty, that the church is without influence in the lives of practical men, and that religion itself, or at any rate institutional religion, is a dying force. All of which, ceen asserted daily in newspapers and repeated daily from platforms and pulpits, makes it worth while to inquire whether the exact opposite may not be true, and whether a great revival of religion may not be looked for in the near future.

For what were the causes for the decay of religion in England, and to a degree in all the world, during the last half of the 19th century? I think we may notice three. First there was the apparent impossibility of reconciling the teachings of modern physical science. Speaking with the enormous prestige conferred on it by its marvellous triumphs in the practical sphere, natural science gave its vote for a mechanical and determinist interpretation of the universe which left no room, not merely for revealed religion, but for any spiritual or moral values whatever.

I do not mean, of course, that all men of science relinquished religion (though many, especially among the younger men, did), but those who retained their hold on religion did so in virtue of the peculiar power, possessed by many men, of keeping their theoretical and practical conclusions in separate water-tight compartments. Today the attitude of serious thinkers is totally different from what it was 30 years ago. If anyone were to declare that the dominant school of philosophy in the near future would be definitely theistic, and even explicitly Christian, it would not appear too bold a prophecy to be realised.

Another cause of weakness in religion was undoubtedly the opinion, vaguely diffused in the public mind and reinforced by the influence of such books as "Robert Elsmere" (how many people under 30 have read that laborious work, I wonder?), that some wonderful critical process discovered, or at least brought to perfection, in Germany has proved the New Testament to be worthless. Today the pendulum of criticism is tending to come to rest at a middle position between old-fashioned obscurantism and the extreme scepticism of the more radical critics, and what have been described as "the assured results of criticism" are such as no religious mind need quarrel with.

The third and, I believe, the most important, cause of the decay of religion during the last two generations was, however the conviction that this world was a very pleasant and comfortable place, that there was some inviolable law of progress and that, to parody a popular phrase, "every day in every way things were getting better and better." Evolution, education, the progress of the sciences and the common sense of the ordinary man might be trusted to maintain a steady rate of progress, and with this world so good, and certain to go on getting better and better, other worldliness of any sort was at once needless and dangerous. A few of the "have-nots" might grumble, but the fact that they were "have nots" proved them to be people of low mental canacity, and so there was no need to bother.

All that is strangely out of date and impossible for us today The conscience of the whole world has been deeply shocked by the appalling spectacle of the war. For some time it seemed probable, and today it is still far from improbable, that we might see civilisation coming down in ruins about our heads All of us have been frightened: most of us have been shocked We are shaken out of our placid self-satisfaction. The dullest of men and politicians babble today of "spiritual forces" and "spiritual sanctions." Surely a condition of things very favorable to a great religious revival!

Personally, I am sure, and have before now given my reasons for believing, that in the early days of this century there was, in Eucken's words, "a moving of the dead bones and a blow of the spirit" in every country in Europe. But it came to nothing owing to the moral insensibility which was the cause of the war Today we have a second chance.

Something To Think About

BY BRUNO LESSING

A nineteen-year-old Indian girl, poor all her life, suddenly finds herself with a daily income of $1,200. She lives in Oklahoma, and they found oceans of oil on her hitherto worthless property. Her name is Exie Fife. And here is the funny thing she said about it all:

"Before, no one ever came to see me, no one ever wrote to me. Now people write all the time and many come to see me every day. Isn't it funny?"

Yes, Exie, it is.

And, unless you start in to get a good education, Exie, and read a great many books and become a little Indian philosopher, you will never realise how tremendously funny it all is.

If you learn a lot, you will find out that the rumor of your $1,200 a day has stirred up the dregs that lie at the bottom of a great percentage of human nature. It is the magnet that attracts the greedy, the lazy, the scheming and the unfit. In their eyes you have really changed. There is the glamor of gold about you. If formerly they said you were ignorant, they now say you are merely eccentric.

There are many millionsires in this world, Exie, who, if they had never possessed their millions would never have been received in decent or intelligent society.

And isn't it comical to see the timeservers and the sycophants flock to the golden fountain? And try to moisten their tongues with a few free drops? And even pretend that they are sincere—that it is the Indian girl whom they admire so much and not her money?

Exie, they will suggest a thousand schemes to you. The oily ones will suggest wonderful schemes of charity which they are willing to handle for you. The slick ones will advise you to invest your daily income in wonderful schemes which cannot go wrong.

The super-slick ones will try to talk you into going into Presidency on the Indian Woman's Independent ticket. All they want is to dip their hands into that $1,200-a-day fountain.

And all this, Exie, after the Bible and all the accumulated wisdom of the centuries has tried to teach them that gold is but dross, that the only wealth which counts in the long run is accumulated in the heart and in the soul and in the mind. You see the kind of education they achieved. Try to get a better one for yourself.

Would you like advice, Exie?

Go to the presidents of three banks in your State and ask them to take charge of your $1,200 a day. And if anybody comes to you with a wonderful scheme which tempts you, tell him or her you will go into it if the three presidents agree that it is wise.

Bank presidents, Exie, are hard-boiled eggs. And they hate to agree.

Interior Decoration

Analysis Of Principles Applied In Houses

"The Principles of Interior Decoration" (Macmillan company, New York) is Bernard C. Jakway's formulation of the artistic principles that underlie sound work in the decoration of houses Mr. Jakway, a university extension lecturer for the University of California, believes that unconscious artistic selection is not sufficient guide for the average decorator, at least, until he has assimilated the laws of taste to which particular problems can be automatically referred "His choices must be reasoned choices, based upon conscious reference to the principles of decorative composition involved in his problem."

Mr. Jakway's statement of principles is somewhat elaborate yet reasonably detailed and precise, and illustrated with numerous diagrams showing good and bad practice.

We are told that unity in the decoration of houses is attained in two ways, one of which is putting like with like, and the other is making one element of composition first in importance and all other elements subordinate. The first the author calls the method of repetition, the second the method of principality. A single piece of furniture such as a chair may itself embody either principle. For instance, a Craftsman chair selected for analysis is held to reveal unity through repetition of the same type of line, while lacking the unity insured by the presence of a dominant element.

In general practice the decorator first strives for unity by choosing a motive or dominant emotional idea around which to build his decorative treatment. In a hall, or in any room relatively free from furniture, pictures or other counter-attractions, a rug may be made the dominant element of the decoration. But as there is a natural tendency to look above, the floor for the meaning of things, a rug cannot be made the dominant feature when other objects compete with it for the attention. Ordinarily the center of the decorative treatment is the fireplace with its overmantel, a group of windows with their hangings, a console table and mirror, a tapestry, a picture or a reading table with a lamp. When the dominant element has been determined it is essential, however, to take care lest it become too conspicuous.

Mr. Jakway says: "The rooms of 30 years ago were for the most part unbeautiful because they were filled with diversities in form and color to the total neglect of any principle of likeness and subordination. On the other hand, our Craftsman rooms, with their exclusively plain surfaces, meager colors and unornamented straight-line furniture, are for the most part unbeautiful because they neglect the variety equally essential to beauty."

While Mr. Jakway shows sound taste and is clear in thought and expression, he tends to overrefine his principles, and some will think that he imports an alien element into his considerations when he generalises from the premise that "Few women have an adequate conception of the degree in which their looks are affected by the colors of their rooms."

Carrying out this warning, he lays down the rule that "A woman who is too dark . . . ought to do her room in low tones, since the effect of white woodwork and pale walls will inevitably be to make her appear still darker." The corollary to this is that a woman may properly regard herself as an element in the decorative effect of the room. Such subtleties tend to make people regard the whole art of decoration as nonsense, or an effectation of the rich.

Anything so intimately related to national taste and culture as architecture or the principles of house decoration should never be allowed to appear trivial or superfluous. However, Mr. Jakway's statement of the principles of decoration is not only consonant with the accepted laws of taste but should further the appreciation of those laws. The illustrations are intended not as concrete examples, but as devices to illuminate principles. The book is apparently meant for the professional practitioner rather than for the houseowner or occupant who desires to impart symmetry and good taste to the furnishings of modest homes, but any one can learn much from the discussion.

The One Study

It gives liberty and breadth to thought, to learn to judge our own epoch from the point of view of universal history, history from the point of view of geological periods, geology from the point of view of astronomy. When the duration of a man's life or of a people's life appears to us as microscopic as that of a fly, and inversely, the life of a gnat as infinite as that of a celestial body, with all its dust of centuries, we feel ourselves on once very small and very great, and we are able as it were to survey from the bight of the sphere our own existence, and the little whirlwinds which agitate our little Europe.

At bottom there is but one subject of study, the forms and metamorphoses of mind. All other subjects may be reduced to that. All other studies bring us back to this study.

Why The Stars Do Not Look Like Fireballs

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

Eminent Astronomer and Authority On Subjects Of Scientific Interest

"If the stars are moving at such tremendous speed, and it takes light in some cases several years to reach us from them, why do they not appear as streaks instead of retaining their original shapes?—A. J. C., Peking."

Your question contains its own answer in the statement about the time required for light to reach us from the stars. The length of that time is measure of the distance of the stars, and the greatness of their distance when compared with the speed of their motion prevents their images from being drawn out into apparent streaks of light, as are the images of meteors shooting through the atmosphere.

When a meteor rushes across the sky its speed is usually many miles per second, while its distance is at most only a few times greater than the space that it traverses in a single second and may even be less than that space.

Accordingly it moves over an arc of many degrees in so brief a period that the impression it makes upon the eye when in any given position has not time to fade from the retina before the object has advanced a considerable distance farther on. The result is that, through the phenomenon of "persistence of vision" (upon which the entire principle of the motion picture depends), the eye sees the moving meteor apparently drawn out into a luminous streak.

But no such appearance would be presented if the meteor were so far away compared with its speed of motion that the arc traversed by it in a second was imperceptibly small. In that case the eye would see the meteor as it sees a slowly thrown ball, i.e. as a separate object moving continuously in the same direction, but not presenting any apparent elongation of its form.

Now, this is the case of the stars. Some of them have "proper motions" across our line of sight amounting to anywhere from a dozen up to one or two hundred miles per second, and yet they appear to the telescope as well as to the naked eye as small, round disks of light. The explanation is that in the brief period of time concerned in the phenomenon of persistence of vision their motion does not carry them over a perceptible arc.

Suppose that the star is moving 200 miles per second, while its distance is so great that its light-waves take 200 years to come to the earth. Then that star is about twelve hundred millions of millions of miles away, counting a light-year as in round numbers six millions of millions of miles. But, at that distance, its cross-motion of 200 miles per second would not produce in a second of time a change of place amounting to the thirty-millionth of a second arc.

In an entire year the star's place, as seen from the earth would change only one second of arc, or not much more than one 3,000th of the apparent diameter of the moon. In order to appear as a luminous streak darting across the heavens it would have to move many billions, instead of only a couple of hundred, miles per second.

The principle underlying this is plainly shown in the apparent movements of terrestrial bodies viewed from different distances. If you stand besides a race course as the racers pass you within a few feet their images may be said to be drawn out into streaks—they certainly would look like streaks of fire if they were luminous. But when, keeping the same speed, they pass around the distant opposite side of the course, there is no such appearance of elongation in the line of motion. So, too, a railroad train, going forty miles an hour, shoots "like a streak" past the observer standing beside the track, but when it has wound its way around to the other side of a valley several miles away it seems to be merely crawling along the base of a hill there.

Even the immense velocity of light—186,320 miles per second—would appear slow if a body endowed with that velocity were viewed at right-angles to its direction of motion from the distance of the stars. In a whole year such a body would change its place by a linear distance less than the apparent diameter of the moon.

A curious relation of time to space is revealed when an instantaneous photograph is made of a swiftly moving body like a cannon-ball. The eye either does not perceive the flying ball at all, or is simply impressed with a sense of something passing in a streak. But an extremely short photographic exposure of the ball shows it plainly as if standing still.

This simply means that during the very brief time that the image rested on the sensitive plate its angular change of place was too slight to produce a noticeable distortion of the image. Time being vastly magnified space sank into relative insignificance.
